PASSAGE: Answer Questions 11 - 15 based on the following passage

Lew Archer, the detective hero created by Rose Mac Donald in "The Moving Target" (1949), is more literary in the tastes than Mike Hammer, and so more apt to muse on fate and the past than to create a political philosophy out of the individualist fantasies of the present. In part Archer owes his special sensitivity to the fact that his creator placed him in the hastily thrown up world of California and the west coast rather than in the grimy eastern cities of Spillane and Hammer. Attuned to history as much as to action, Archer is more fascinated by the past patterns of relationships that erupt into the present than by the immediacies of violence and personal confrontation. Like other American naturalists, both Archer and Hammer pride themselves on their ability to be known in all the parts of town and country. But Mac Donald explores what Spillane essentially disregards the intricacies of family and the gradation of social class. This Spillane's hero seems to bring from Hammer and Hemingway, while Mac Donald's Archer owes his linkage to Chandler and Faulkner.

11. What is the author's main purpose in the passage?

- (A) To explain the plot of the Moving Target
- (B) To show the importance of setting in the detective novel
- (C) To prove that Archer and Hammer are literary heroes
- (D) To compare two characters in detective fiction

12. In the second sentence of the passage, the word "cavort" refers to a

- (A) Fantasist
- (B) Naturalist
- (C) Writer
- (D) Philosopher

13. Which of the following is LEAST likely to be characteristic of an Archer story?

- (A) A violent argument
- (B) A California setting
- (C) A concern with social class
- (D) A study of family relationship

14. Which of the following best describes Mac Donald's relationship to Chandler and Faulkner?

- (A) Mac Donald portrayed the lives of Chandler and Faulkner in one of his novels.
- (B) Mac Donald followed in the tradition of Chandler and Faulkner.
- (C) Mac Donald influenced the work of Chandler and Faulkner.
- (D) Mac Donald disregarded the intricacies of Chandler and Faulkner.

15. The paragraph preceding the passage probably discussed the writing of which of the following individuals?

- (A) Hemingway
- (B) Chandler
- (C) Spillane
- (D) Faulkner
